

The Leadership Cabinet has chosen the making and forming of disciples as an on-going emphasis for the year. A word about learning discipleship from the disciplines and practices in the early church:

"It is striking that the [early church] catechumens [converts in the discipleship process being prepared for their baptism] were first asked not to master ideas, but rather to practice the faith. Their first lessons were not in the doctrines of the Trinity, the two natures of Christ or Jesus' atoning death. Instead, they learned how to pray, fast and give alms. Participating in worship was especially important, but even here what they received was not so much instruction in what they should believe, but rather in what they were called to do. The second century Christian philosopher Justin Martyr, in one of the earliest descriptions of Christian worship, tells us that a "presiding officer urges and invites us in a discourse to practice the example of virtue" based on the writings that would become the Old and New Testaments. A person learned the faith by living the faith." - Dr. John Burgess March 16, 2016 article in Presbyterian Outlook from his excellent article, 'Putting Easter into Baptism' <http://pres-outlook.org/2016/03/putting-easter-baptism/>

In You Are What You Love: The Spiritual Power of Habit, Reformed philosopher, Dr. James K. A. Smith, demonstrates biblically, philosophically, liturgically, practically how we can recover the biblical and early church practices and process of a holistic way of making and forming disciples. Discipleship is as much or "more a matter of hungering and thirsting as knowing and believing. Jesus' command to follow him is a command to align our loves and longings with his- to want what God wants, to desire what God desires, to hunger and thirst after God and crave a world where [God] is all in all...

Discipleship is a kind of immigration, from the kingdom of darkness to the king of Gods beloved Son (Col. 1:13) In Christ we are given a heavenly passport; in his body we learn how live like 'locals' of the kingdom...we need to be acclimated to the new way of life, learn a new language; acquire new habits of that rival domain...(Phil 3.20)"

Spiritual practices and habits, individually and corporately, are THE primary ways God transforms us into the likeness of Christ.

Is discipleship development of the leaders and congregation a focus for you, for your session? What might effective Christian Discipleship look like in your congregation? What is one practice in your personal discipleship in which you would like to grow?

Follow up from last presbytery meeting - Spiritual practices of disciples – follow up - how are YOU AND I ::

a. sharing our stories of faith?

b. equipping those in our congregations, including children and teens, to hear and share their stories, including in worship services periodically? See resources listed on handouts from presbytery

The Clusters, our structure for community, collegial discipleship and mission among our pastors/CRE's, are all four active and alive in Christ – and the pastors are alive to one another. They have reached a sustainable level that George or Kathy are no longer are carrying the administration. Each cluster has its own administrative leadership and is pretty much charting its own course with dwelling in the Word, sharing and support, and prayer... One has adopted a vision for a mission specific to the cluster that God is calling the cluster to pursue together. But we feel/consider the cluster model, which we voted to launch as a part of the new structure, to be a huge success for the presbytery and our work here. The Holy Spirit is at work among the participants of the clusters.

The Clusters and their Administrative Leadership:

- a. The Butte Cluster – Freeman McCall and Rusty Craig
- b. The White Sulphur Cluster – Debbie Funke - includes some lay leaders
- c. The Billings Cluster – Mary Davis
- d. The Miles City Cluster – Neva Rathbun and Kristin Willett- includes some pastors from other denominations.

Questions re: cluster groups: The vision for the clusters has stabilized. Should the Leadership Cabinet suggest agenda to the clusters or let them continue to prayerfully self-determine? Should we be helping them explore, or prepare for next steps?

Suggested Next Phase for Clusters:

- a. Prayerfully consider in light of our vision statement: where the Holy Spirit is already at work? How is each pastor/session making disciples and disciple-making leaders in each congregation? How might they share spiritual gifts of leaders or groups to strengthen this work and the congregations in their cluster? The presbytery? What ministry they might offer to the larger presbytery? (See Leadership Cabinet goals below and in their report.)
- b. Prayerfully dream and seek to discern, in light of our vision statement: how God may be leading the cluster and the congregations they serve in mission together?

PMT and pastors/CRE's –

Ongoing prayer appreciated for all our congregations, leadership, their communities and the ministry and mission Christ is calling them to join in.

Many of our pastors/CRE's and their families are facing difficult challenges, some on many fronts simultaneously. Please continue to pray for them, and us as pastors to the presbytery.

No WNLТ this year. Each presbytery can request up to $1,000 to be used only for continuing ed.

Spiritual Direction in the Presbytery: Continue to explore the training and eventual service of two more spiritual directors in the presbytery... Every pastor, leader, disciple encounters dryness of spirit, spiritual confusion and discouragement, a loss of meaning and perspective, and general questions about where is God in my life and work. Spiritual directors can help journey with our pastors and leaders through these issues, helping them maintain a fruitful spiritual life and ministry. George is open to offering spiritual direction to interested leaders.

A Whitworth – Yellowstone Partnership

DREAM Grant, PCUSA and Whitworth grants towards Yellowstone Whitworth Rural Ministry Initiative: Supporting, strengthening our pastors, congregations and new ministry and mission possibilities and developing future leaders for Christ's Church in partnership. We have been working on this during the fall/winter. This is the second year. After meeting in February, with the six students (down from the 10 hoped for due to high demand stretching WU grant funds) Kathy has been talking with the pastors and some leaders in each of the 3 locations set up virtual meetings via Skype so they can get to know one another and be planning together for the ministry and mission God has in store.

The Fellows will be attending presbytery in Miles City. Anaconda/Big Hole – Katy Schlata & Samantha Cobb; Manhattan – Tyler Stitt & Hannah Beard; Lewistown – Jacob Gallegos & Annette Peppel.

Possible partnerships to explore include: WU fellows partner with several congregations on a service or mission project in MT this summer. Anaconda/Big Hole is praying about possibilities in August after relationships well established, the fellows know their communities and MT better and earlier events such as VBS and camps are over.

Needs include: to raise, find, vote the final $6,000 for required stipends for these students; some of them are helping to raise money for scholarships for campers and needed VBS supplies.
